On Friday afternoon, April 9, police from Braintree, Duxbury, Framingham, Salem, NH and the FBI Bank Robbery Task Force arrested a Glenn J. Legere, 31, of Rockland in Framingham in connection with four bank robberies in Braintree, Duxbury, Hanover and Plymouth. Detectives located Legere at the Framingham home of a relative and placed him under arrest, according to Braintree Deputy Police Chief Russ Jenkins. Various items of clothing, believed worn during some of the robberies, were seized from the home.

At approximately 4:15 p.m. on April 2, Duxbury police received a report of a bank robbery at the Eastern Bank on Depot Street. Responding officers discovered that a white male had entered the bank and showed a teller a note demanding money, according to a press release from Chief Stephen Doherty.

Police believed the man to be connected to several other area robberies, including a March 21 hold-up at a bank in Braintree. That robbery occurred at around the same time of day, and also did not involve a weapon, according to Jenkins.

Police in Salem, NH are also investigating Legere, for a bank robbery in their community, and he continues to be a suspect in other South Shore bank robberies including the March 27 Bank of America robbery at the South Shore Plaza, Jenkins said. Legere was being held at the Braintree Police station on $15,000 bail prior to his arraignment.

In Duxbury, Det. Sgt. Dennis Symmonds and Det. Dennis McKenney obtained the warrant for unarmed robbery and larceny over $250 after a brief investigation. Legere was arraigned in several courts on similar charges on Monday.
